

"Your raw authenticity has the potential to ignite a fire within others who dare to dream beyond their limitations. Keep singing your unique melody and watch as you create ripples of inspiration in a world thirsty for genuine courage"

notes from sherri

First, let me say how very grateful I am for each and every one of you. For those who long ago started Bread & Roses with the desire to support and inspire each other as well as those around us. And to those who have joined in the years since - you have kept this unique and beautiful vision alive and made it ever stronger with your voices and with your hearts. And to those who have recently joined... you have brought such great energy and enthusiasm along with your wonderful voices! Thank you!!!

I dare say that not many of you really knew what you were in for when we started this semester back in August. I heard a few concerned "uhhms" when you saw all the new pieces I had chosen for this concert. And a few more when I said we'd be doing "Go Where I Send Thee" without a conductor. But... BRAVO to you all. You have accomplished more than learning the notes....you are making incredibly beautiful, exciting, and meaningful music. (I knew you could!) You will be holding many hearts with your songs.
